BLACKOUTS

Do You Have a Fancy Cognac, at Least?

A truck driver was recovering from alcohol poisoning in a Witbank, South Africa, hospital Monday after being forced to drink two 750-milliliter bottles of brandy during a carjacking, the South African Press Association reported. Four men dressed as police officers stopped the truck Friday, assaulted the driver and threatened to kill him if he did not drink the brandy. The driver blacked out, then woke up near the highway on Saturday to find his truck missing. He slept until Sunday, when he was able to walk to a police station. Police have since recovered the truck and arrested a suspect. Officials said the man was forced to drink the brandy in hopes that he wouldn't remember the incident. (EXPRESS)

Oh, Flight Attendant, Can I Switch Seats?

Zimbabwe is looking to reform national airline Air Zimbabwe after one of its jets flew 3,728 miles from Dubai with only one passenger, Reuters reported, citing the Herald. Transportation official Karikoga Kaseke said the airline, which has had fuel shortages, did "no proper market research" before the trip. Some have said the airline was made to fly to certain nations to boost economic ties, which Kaseke denied, instead blaming management for having "little knowledge of aviation."

Stolen Stuff Turns Me On

A little flirting helped nab a thief who stole a cell phone from a Nextel truck in Palm Springs, Calif. A woman who worked at the Nextel store that the phone came from called the stolen phone and suggestively asked the suspect, 21-

Baltazar allegedly lunged at them with a knife; one of the men held him at bay with a baseball bat until police arrived. Baltazar had suspected methamphetamine in his pocket and is being held on $25,000 bail. (AP)

Justices Overturn Andersen Ruling

High court says jury in accounting firm's trial given vague directions

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court threw out the conviction of the Arthur Andersen accounting firm for destroying Enron Corp.-related documents, ruling unanimously Tuesday that the jury instructions were too broad.

The decision was a defeat for the Bush administration, which had declared prosecution of white-collar criminals a high priority following accounting scandals at major corporations. But it offered only symbolic relief for Andersen, the company whose 2002 conviction put 28,000 employees out of work and left it virtually defunct.

"We pursued an appeal of this case not because we believed Arthur Andersen could be restored to its previous position, but because we had an obligation to set the record straight," Andersen spokesman Patrick Dorton said.

The Justice Department said it was disappointed and was reviewing its options, including retrying the case. "We remain convinced that even the most powerful corporations have the responsibility of adhering to the rule of law," said acting assistant Attorney General John C. Richter.

The high court's decision was surprisingly swift, coming just over a month after the justices heard arguments in the case.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, writing for the court, said the former Big Five accounting firm's obstruction-of-justice conviction was improper because the instructions at trial were too vague for jurors to determine correctly whether Andersen obstructed justice. HOPE YEN (AP)

Terrorism Suspects Denied Bail

NEW YORK | Two U.S. citizens accused of being al Qaeda loyalists were each ordered held without bail Tuesday as they appeared in federal courtrooms in New York and Florida.

Tarik Shah, 42, of New York, smiled at supporters and appeared relaxed at his preliminary hearing in U.S. District Court in Manhattan before Judge Theodore Katz.

In Fort Pierce, Florida, Dr. Rafiq Abdus Sabir, 50, told Judge James Hopkins that he had yet to hire an attorney, and the judge set the next hearing in his case for June 6.

Prosecutors say the two men swore a formal oath of loyalty to al Qaeda as they conspired to use their skills in martial arts and medicine to aid international terrorism.

The men were arrested Friday following a sting operation that the government said started in 2003.

Boy Scouts in Ga. Found to Inflate Black Membership

ATLANTA | An independent investigation of the Atlanta-area Boy Scouts found that the organization inflated its number of black Scouts by more than 5,000 in a program for inner-city youth.

The executive director of the Atlanta Boy Scouts resigned after the report was released.

Auditors said Scout officials assigned to inner-city areas may have felt pressure to demonstrate membership growth, which is a part of their performance evaluations. Membership numbers also are used to help determine funding from the United Way, a major Scouts donor.

The audit found that former Scouts too old to participate remained on the memberships lists and that boys who had only attended informational meetings about the program were signed up.

In one example, an official changed the birth date of 87 Cub Scouts so they would be old enough to participate in the program. (AP)

Bush: Guantanamo Report 'Absurd'

President says charges buoyed by detainees 'who hate America'

WASHINGTON | President Bush on Tuesday dismissed a human rights report as "absurd" for its harsh criticism of U.S. treatment of terrorist suspects at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, saying the allegations were made by prisoners "who hate America."

"It's an absurd allegation. The United States is a country that promotes freedom around the world," Bush said of the Amnesty International report that compared Guantanamo to a Soviet-era gulag.

In a Rose Garden news conference, Bush defiantly stood by his domestic policy agenda while defending his actions abroad.

With the death toll climbing daily in Iraq, he said that nation's fledgling government is "plenty capable" of defeating insurgents whose attacks on Iraqi civilians and U.S. soldiers have intensified.

On another foreign policy issue, Bush shot back at critics who suggest his diplomatic approach to North Korea is allowing the communist regime to expand its nuclear program. "If diplomacy is the wrong approach, I guess that means military. That's how I view it as either diplomacy or military. I am for the diplomacy approach," he said.

The president opened the news conference by urging Congress to pass his stalled energy legislation and overhaul Social Security with a partial privatization plan, among other initiatives.

Despite skittishness about his plans for Social Security, he said he would push forward. "It's like water cutting through a rock. I'm going to keep working and working and working," he said. TERENCE HUNT (AP)

State Lawmakers Override Veto on Stem Cell Research

The state Senate on Tuesday easily overrode Gov. Mitt Romney's veto and approved legislation designed to propel Massachusetts to the forefront of embryonic stem cell research. The 35-2 vote sends the bill to the House, which was also expected to override the veto on Tuesday. At that point, it would become law over Romney's objections. The Republican governor vetoed the bill last week because it allows the cloning of human embryos for use in stem cell tests—a practice Romney says amounts to creating life in order to destroy it. (AP)

Report: Smoking Aimed at Women

BOSTON | Tobacco companies did elaborate research on women to figure out how to hook them on smoking — even toying with the idea of chocolate-flavored cigarettes that would curb appetite, according to a new analysis.

Researchers at Harvard University's School of Public Health said they examined more than 7 million documents — some dating back to 1969 — for new details about the industry's efforts to lure more women smokers.

The report, published in the June issue of the journal Addiction, says tobacco companies looked for ways to modify their cigarettes to give women the illusion they could puff their way into a better life.

A Philip Morris spokesman declined to comment, saying the company hasn't had a chance to fully review the report. (AP)

Russian Oil Tycoon Given 9 Years

Yukos founder Khodorkovsky vows to clear name

MOSCOW | Fallen oil tycoon Mikhail Khodorkovsky was sentenced to nine years in prison Tuesday, ending the biggest case in post-Soviet Russia. The year-long trial spurred accusations that it was linked to Khodorkovsky's opposition to President Vladimir Putin, and stoked the fears of foreign investors.

The 41-year-old Khodorkovsky was convicted Tuesday on charges that included tax evasion and fraud. He promised to clear his name, and his Yukos oil company promised to fight a series of court battles — keeping a spotlight on doubts about the rule of law in Russia.

"Shame! Shame!" Khodorkovsky's supporters chanted outside the Meshchansky court, where they rallied daily during the trial.

In Washington, President Bush criticized the trial in unusually blunt language aimed at a U.S. ally in the war on terrorism. "Here, you're innocent until proven guilty and it appeared to us, at least people in my administration, that it looked like he had been adjudged guilty prior to having a fair trial," Bush said.

Capital flight has tripled in Russia in the year since Khodorkovsky's arrest, and the growth of oil exports has slowed sharply, raising questions about the state's stronger hand in the vital industry.

Khodorkovsky's trial was widely seen as a Kremlin-orchestrated attempt to crush a potential political threat. (AP)

While Khodorkovsky is widely unpopular as one of the "oligarchs" who became immensely wealthy during the murky post-Soviet privatization of state industries in the 1990s, many Russians saw political motives behind his trial.

His supporters contend it was part of a Kremlin-driven campaign to punish him for financing opposition parties and to stifle his own political ambitions. After spending 583 days in custody, he faces 7 1/2 years more in prison, which would him jailed past the 2008 election to pick Putin's successor.

A spokeswoman for the prosecutor-general, denied the case had anything to do with politics. She said it was only about "banal theft." (AP)

Chirac turns to trusted Villepin after stunning 'no' vote on EU treaty

PARIS | President Jacques Chirac, shaken by the defeat of the European Union constitution, appointed Dominique de Villepin, a loyalist who jetted around the globe galvanizing international opposition to the Iraq war, as prime minister to lead a new government Tuesday.

Villepin, 51, moves from the Interior Ministry to replace Jean-Pierre Raffarin, dumped after voters Sunday roundly rejected Chirac's call to ratify the constitution.

In Villepin, Chirac opted for a trusted pair of hands, rather than a radical change in direction. The senator's son, a former foreign minister and writer who speaks excellent English, has long been close to Chirac. He was Chirac's voice at the U.N. Security Council in the crisis over Iraq in 2003, arguing that war should be a last resort.

Villepin's aristocratic air and the fact that he has never been tested in an election could be drawbacks as the government tries to reconnect with the people.

Opposition Socialists dismissed Chirac's choice as a mere shuffling of personalities. Senior Socialist lawmaker Jean-Marc Ayrault called Villepin's appointment the "ultimate attempt to save an administration in agony." JOHN LEICESTER (AP)

top Iraqi official died

BAGHDAD | U.S. and Iraqi troops battled foreign fighters near the Syrian border and found the body of Anbar province's missing governor, the highest-ranking Iraqi kidnapped since the fall of Saddam Hussein, authorities said Tuesday.

Foreign extremists are thought to be a small portion of the Sunni-dominated insurgency, although they are blamed for some of the worst attacks.

Officials said the body of Anbar Gov. Raja Nawaf Farhan al-Mahlawi was found Sunday after troops engaged in a firefight with fighters in a house in Rawah, 175 miles northwest of Baghdad. The battle killed two Syrians, an Algerian and a Jordanian and wounded two Saudis and a Moroccan, said U.S. Maj. Wes Hayes, a military spokesman.

"After questioning the wounded foreign fighters, coalition forces investigated the house and discovered [al-Mahalawi's] body, which had not been shot," Hayes said.

An Iraqi government spokesman, Laith Kuba, said the governor apparently was killed by falling rubble. He was chained to a tank of propane. Al-Mahalawi was kidnapped May 10. (AP)

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Pakistan's president said Tuesday he will hand over senior al Qaeda terrorist suspect Abu Farraj al-Libbi to the U.S. for prosecution, even though the man is believed to be behind two assassination attempts against him.

President Gen. Pervez Musharraf said al-Libbi was cooperating but had not provided any useful information on Osama bin Laden's location, and that Pakistan has no interest in keeping him.

"We deport al Qaeda suspects to the United States," Musharraf told a CNN conference in Atlanta, speaking via video. It was not clear when al-Libbi would be turned over.

Al-Libbi was arrested May 2. Some officials have described him as al Qaeda's No. 3 leader. However, he does not appear on the FBI list of the world's most-wanted terrorists, and his exact role is murky. (AP)

Starting Wednesday, they'll be sweating a little less. In a nationwide campaign to save energy by cutting down on air conditioning—thereby cutting greenhouse gas emissions in accordance with the Kyoto global warming pact—the government

Some of the country's highest authorities have been enlisted to help persuade workers in Japan, where conformity and tradition are prized, to set their inhibitions aside.

Task Force to Research Slaves' Work on Capitol

WASHINGTON | The U.S. Capitol was built with the labor of slaves who cut the logs, laid the stones and baked the bricks. Two centuries later, Congress has decided the world should know about this.

Congressional leaders on Tuesday announced the creation of a task force to study the history of slave labor in the construction of the Capitol and suggest how it can best be commemorated.

"It is our hope that the work of the task force will shed light on this part of our history, the building of our nation's greatest symbol of democracy," House Speaker Dennis Hastert, Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, and Democratic leaders Rep. Nancy Pelosi and Sen. Harry Reid said in a joint statement.

Historians say slaves were the largest labor pool when Congress in 1790 decided to create a new capital along the Potomac. Over the next decade, local farmers rented out their slaves for an average of $55 a year to help build the Capitol, the White House, the Treasury Department and the city's streets. JIM ABRAMS (AP)

Leaders Aim to Clear Air

Council created with hopes of meeting the EPA's new standards

WASHINGTON | As the Washington region teeters on the brink of violating the federal Clean Air Act, leaders of the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland are appointing a new team to clear the air.

Virginia Gov. Mark Warner, Maryland Gov. Robert Ehrlich and D.C. Mayor Anthony Williams signed an agreement Tuesday to create the Interstate Air Quality Council during the fourth meeting of the regional leaders. It is comprised of the environmental and transportation secretaries from the three jurisdictions.

Nitrous oxide emissions have been cut 44 percent in the last 15 years, and particulate matter in the air has dropped 66 percent. But Warner said there is more to do as the region awaits the Environmental

Ehrlich said the new council will have the authority to deal with issues that local bodies like the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments cannot.

The governors also thanked Williams for improving water treatment plants which release water into areas that impact the Chesapeake Bay. HEATHER GREENFIELD (AP)

Va. Transportation Leader Resigns

RICHMOND, VA. | Transportation Commissioner Philip A. Shucet, hired three years ago to improve a highway-building agency plagued by delays and cost overruns, has resigned effective July 1, Gov. Mark R. Warner said Tuesday.

Warner said he reluctantly accepted Shucet's resignation after several days of trying to persuade him to stay until the end of Warner's term in January.

Shucet, 55, said he was quitting to spend more time with his family in Virginia Beach.

Warner said that under Shucet, the percentage of highway projects completed on time has increased from 20 percent in fiscal year 2001 to 74 percent through the third quarter of this year. (AP)

Police Search for Suspects After Shooting in NW

WASHINGTON | Police searched Tuesday for two suspects in the shooting death of a teen and the wounding of another. The crime happened in the same neighborhood where a young girl was killed last year, and where just two months earlier, the mayor and police chief came to launch a homicide reduction plan.

Andre Belton, 17, was gunned down late Monday in what authorities said was a drive-by shooting in the Sursum Corda section of Northwest Washington.

An unidentified 15-year-old boy was wounded. MPD offered a $25,000 reward for information in the case. But the younger victim — who was treated and released — was not helping detectives.

"There had to be a motive of some kind, and it's a question of finding out exactly what that motive is," MPD Chief Charles H. Ramsey said Tuesday. (AP)

United Reaches Pact With Unions

Nation's second-largest airline barely avoids strike with 2 xdeals

CHICAGO | United Airlines secured two critical labor deals Tuesday to remove the threat of a crippling strike during peak travel season, gaining a contract agreement in principle with its machinists union just hours after its mechanics voted to ratify a separate pact.

The wage and benefit concessions by the two employee groups should strongly boost United's quest to get out of bankruptcy, all but completing efforts to cut labor costs by a further $700 million annually.

The developments also came just in time to avoid a potentially strike-triggering ruling by a bankruptcy judge, who was set to issue an order annulling existing contracts and imposing pay cuts unilaterally had there been no agreement.

The machinists union had put

Canale, president of the machinists union, called off strike preparations.

its 20,000 baggage handlers and other workers on notice to be prepared to walk off the job and shut down the nation's second-largest airline if its contract was broken. Hours before the court session, an agreement was reached on the final sticking point — a replacement pension plan — and strike preparations were called off.

"Our folks are now standing down," said Randy Canale, president of District 141 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. (AP)

EU Digs In for Trade War Over Planes

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | Digging in for a new trade war with Washington, the European Union filed a counter complaint Tuesday at the World Trade Organization claiming that U.S.-based Boeing Co. receives illegal government aid.

EU Trade Commissioner Peter Mandelson said he had little choice but to retaliate because the U.S. decided to close the door on reaching an amicable solution to the standoff between Boeing and France-based Airbus.

"The path of negotiations has been closed," Mandelson said, laying the blame for the new trade war at the feet of the Americans after the U.S. officials decided Monday to abandon negotiations and take the EU to a legal panel at the WTO.

The WTO confirmed Tuesday that it had received complaints from both the U.S. and EU.

Mandelson said the WTO action could only rupture fragile EU-U.S. ties, adding that taking the talks to the WTO would accomplish nothing. (AP)

'Deep Throat' Revealed

Opened Source

The mystery man who tantalized Washington steps into the spotlight

WASHINGTON | The Washington Post confirmed Tuesday that W. Mark Felt, a former number-two official at the FBI, was "Deep Throat," the secretive source who provided information that helped unravel the Watergate scandal in the early 1970s and contributed to the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon.

The confirmation came from Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the two Washington Post reporters who broke the Watergate story, and their former top editor, Benjamin C. Bradlee. The three spoke after Felt's family and Vanity Fair magazine identified the 91-year-old Felt, now a retiree in California, as the long-anonymous source who provided crucial guidance for some of the newspaper's groundbreaking Watergate stories.

The Vanity Fair story said Felt had admitted his "historic, anonymous role" following years of denial.

In a statement Tuesday, Woodward and Bernstein said, "W. Mark Felt was 'Deep Throat' and helped us immeasurably in our Watergate coverage. However, as the record shows, many other sources and officials assisted us and other reporters for the hundreds of stories that were written in The Washington Post about Watergate."

Felt's guidance to Woodward — provided on "deep background" in secret meetings — helped keep public attention focused on the June 1972 break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington's Watergate office and apartment complex, and on a subsequent cover-up effort. This ultimately led to a congressional investigation that revealed the role of Nixon and a number of his top aides. Under threat of impeachment, Nixon resigned in 1974.

Woodward, Bernstein and Bradlee had kept the identity of "Deep Throat" secret at the source's request, saying his name would be revealed upon his death. "We've kept that secret because we keep our word," Woodward said.

But with the Vanity Fair article and the family's statement, the three decided today to break their silence.

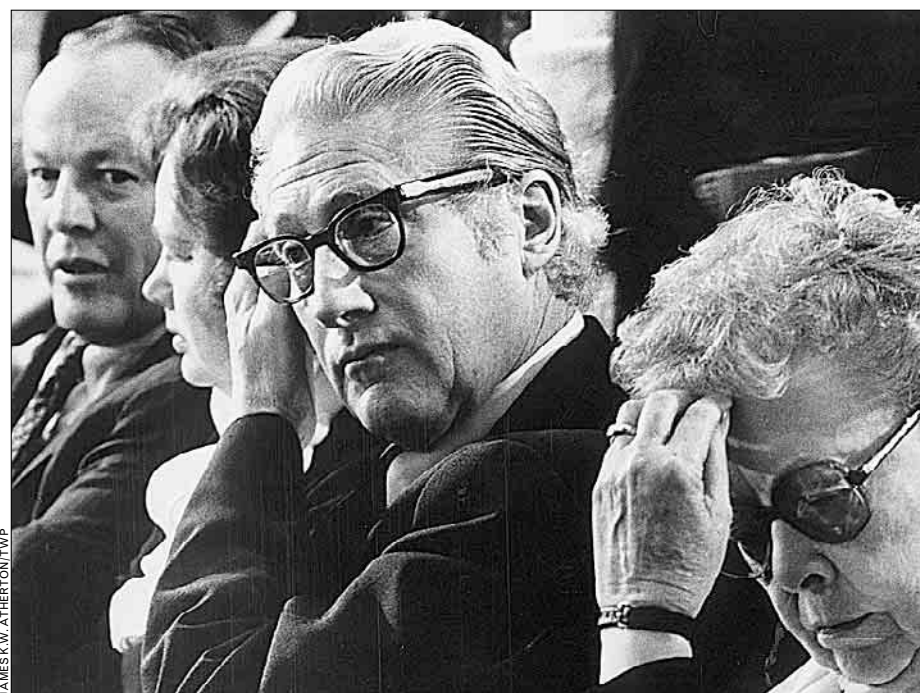

Woodward went ahead despite skepticism that the former FBI official was competent to decide to change the ground rules of their secret relationship. Felt has been in declining health since suffering a stroke in 2001.

Woodward, now a Post assistant managing editor, said he is writing an article for Thursday's newspaper that will provide a personal account of his and Bernstein's experience in covering Watergate. Bernstein is now a freelance writer and lecturer.

Woodward said Felt helped The Post at a time of tense relations between the White House and much of the FBI hierarchy. He said the Watergate break-in came shortly after the death of legendary FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, Felt's mentor, and that Felt and other bureau officials wanted to see an FBI veteran promoted to succeed Hoover.

Felt himself had hopes that he would be the next FBI director, but Nixon instead appointed an administration insider, assistant attorney general L. Patrick Gray, to the post.

Bradlee, in an interview Tuesday, said that knowing that "Deep Throat" was a high-ranking FBI official helped him feel confident about the information that the paper was publishing about Watergate. He said that he knew the "positional identity" of "Deep Throat" as the Post was breaking its Watergate stories and that he learned his name within a couple of weeks after Nixon's resignation.

"The number-two guy at the FBI, that was a pretty good source," he said.

"I knew the paper was on the right track," Bradlee said. The "quality of the source" and the soundness of his guidance made him sure of that, he said.

Bradlee said that over the years, "it was interesting to watch people flounder around with odd choices" about the identity of "Deep Throat," a nickname borrowed from the title of a pornographic film. Although he knew the source's identity, Bradlee said, "I've never met Felt. I wouldn't know him if I fell on him."

In a family statement released Tuesday, Felt's grandson, Nick Jones, said, "The family believes my grandfather, Mark Felt Sr., is a great American hero who went well above and beyond the call of duty at much risk to himself to save his country from a horrible injustice." The statement added, "We all sincerely hope the country will see him this way as well."

attorney John D. O'Connor, described Felt as conflicted over his role in the Watergate revelations and over whether he should publicly reveal that he was the anonymous source whose identity has been a closely guarded secret for more than three decades.

"On several occasions he confided to me, 'I'm the guy they used to call "Deep Throat,"' O'Connor wrote. The author wrote that Felt "still has qualms about his actions, but he also knows that historic events compelled him to behave as he did: standing up to an executive branch intent on obstructing his agency's pursuit of the truth." CLEARED 'THROATS'

Over the past three decades, there have been countless theories as to the identity of Bob Woodward's background source during the Watergate investigation. Dubbed "Deep Throat" after a porn film popular at the time, the only people known to have learned of the source's identity are Woodward; his writing partner Carl Bernstein; and Ben Bradlee, the former executive editor of The Washington Post. Among the figures speculated to have been "Deep Throat":

- L. PATRICK GRAY: Appointed by Nixon to be acting director of the FBI in 1972 after J. Edgar Hoover's death
- CHARLES W. BATES: Assistant director in charge of the FBI's general investigative division.
- ROBERT KUNKEL: FBI agent in charge of the Washington, D.C., field office.
- CORD MEYER: Top aide to CIA Director Richard Helms.
- WILLIAM E. COLBY: CIA director from 1973 to 1976.
- ALEXANDER HAIG: Nixon's chief of staff. He took over in 1973 after H.R. Haldeman resigned from the post.
- HENRY KISSINGER: Nixon's national security adviser during his first term and secretary of state in his second.
- FRED FIELDING: Nixon's deputy White House counsel.
- RON ZEIGLER: Nixon's press secretary.
- STEPHEN BULL: A top Nixon White House aide.
- JOHN DEAN: Nixon's White House counsel.

Hatchback To the Future

Mazda ups the ante for five-doors with the balanced Mazda6

ROAD TEST | Mazda has perfected the five-door hatchback in its Mazda6. For one, it's cool-looking.

The fast-glass canopy and graceful curvature of the rear roof pillar pull the body lines rearward with more dispatch, lending the hatchback a leaner, sleeker profile; and there's an altogether ornery-looking spoiler. The Mazda6 five-door is a case study in the evocative power of cheap plastic.

It has body-colored side-sill extensions and sport bumpers front and rear for a slightly slammed, ground-effects look, as well as body-colored grille, door handles and mirrors. Unlike aftermarket bolt-ons that can make cars look like they got dressed in the dark, these handsome pieces complement the car very, um, dope-ly.

Meanwhile, the five-door sups cargo with a big ladle. It's also fairly well-decked, equipment-wise: halogen fog lights, power adjustable driver seat, leather steering wheel, shifter and emergency brake, automatic dual climate control, and dual front and rear side air bags and curtains. The titanium finish on the consoles, though, picks up scratches quickly.

When driving, it does have a vague tinniness to it, especially when encountering less-than-perfect pavement. The wishbones-and-multilinks sports suspension is harder than day-old baguettes.

It's not until you bend into an off-ramp that the setup pays off as the car shoulders into the camber and noses around. With an easy agility and composure, the Mazda6 is a fun car to drive hard, but you do need to dig your spurs in.

Overall, the Mazda6 five-door is instantly likable — taut and well drawn, comfortable and capable. And you'll grow to love its balance of performance and practicality.

Large SUVs hit hard as consumers react to higher gas prices

TRENDS | The hulking, gas-guzzling sport utility vehicle, bane of environmentalists, is starting to fade from the American road. Rising gas prices seem to be making SUV drivers think twice about whether they really need them.

Industry experts say it's a nationwide phenomenon, though numbers suggest many SUV owners are also trading down to smaller SUVs. Market researchers J.D. Power and Associates said full-sized SUV sales declined by 22 percent this year through April, while sales of small "entry level" SUVs rose by almost 8 percent.

Edmunds.com said trade-in values of large SUVs have declined by as much as 4.27 percent in the past year. One of them, the huge Chevrolet Suburban, has dropped by as much as 11 percent in trade-in value, Edmunds said.

"The large SUVs have been the hardest hit," said Alex Rosten, an Edmunds.com market analyst. Mid-size SUVs have been similarly affected. Edmunds.com said a 2-year-old Ford Explorer, long a U.S. favorite SUV by sales volume, is worth about 5.5 percent less now than a 2-year-old Explorer was worth a year ago.

Adu Hopes to Make It a Sweet 16

Teenager to celebrate birthday as the key player for U.S. squad

WASHINGTON | Just in time for his 16th birthday, Freddy Adu has the perfect cure for his teenage blues — getting away from adults.

For the next several weeks, Adu will leave Major League Soccer — where his playing time is inconsistent and his team isn't tailored around his considerable talents — and join the U.S. under-20 team for the World Youth Championship in the Netherlands.

"Right now, I don't know how to put it, I feel like I'm in a funk," Adu said after D.C. United's lifeless 2-0 home loss to FC Dallas on Saturday.

Adu started for just the fourth time this season, but he was a bit player. It won't be that way with the U-20s. Even though he'll still be the youngest player on the roster, Adu will be the American team's undisputed star when the United States opens group play against Argentina on June 11.

LIFE'S A BALL: Freddy Adu tries to capture control of the ball in D.C. United's loss to FC Dallas on Saturday. A reserve in D.C., Adu will start for the U.S. U-20 team.

"The great thing is I am allowed to do my thing on that team," Adu said.

That Adu doesn't get a chance to do his thing in MLS has been a source of debate since United made him the No. 1 overall draft pick last year at the age of 14.

Although critics and fans wanted to see Adu play every minute possible, coach Peter Nowak was given credit for bringing the youngster along slowly. The coach's methods were vindicated when Adu improved during the second half of the season — and when United won the league's title.

This year, with the hubbub fading and a year of learning how to be a pro under his belt, Adu appeared poised to become more of an impact player. But Nowak continues to take a cautious approach, even though Adu has either scored or assisted on five of United's last eight goals.

For now, though, Adu can enjoy the camaraderie of the U.S. youth team. The only drawback is that the team leaves for Europe on Wednesday, one day before Adu turns 16.

When he returns to the United States, he'll be a year older and ready to get his driver's license — and perhaps out of his playing funk after a good performance overseas.

Quintanilla Granted Release

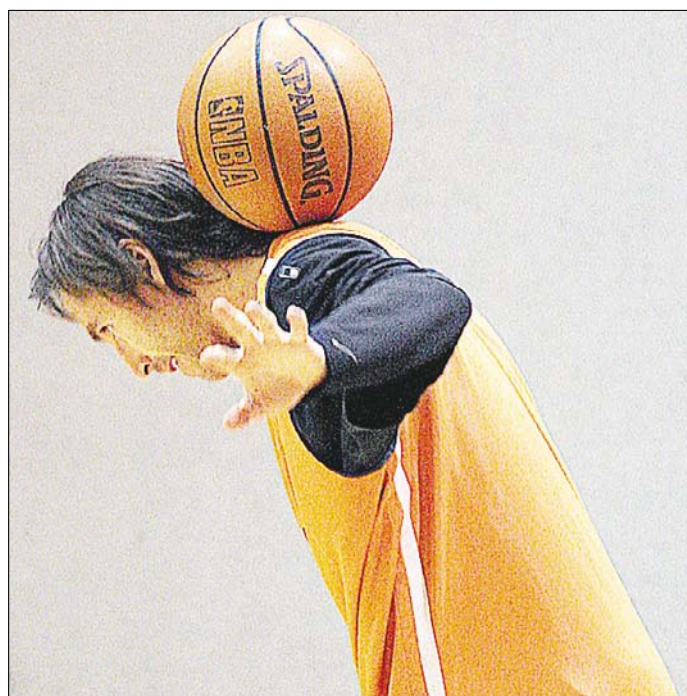

D.C. United midfielder Eliseo Quintanilla was granted his request for a release Tuesday. Quintanilla played in 27 games, starting 21, and scored five goals during the 2002 and 2003 seasons, but he broke his right leg last year during the pre-season and didn't play in the 2004 regular season. The 22-year-old Salvadoran also failed to get any playing time this year on a roster deep in midfield talent. (AP)

Mondesi's Future in Doubt After Braves Make Move

Outfielder Raul Mondesi was designated for assignment Tuesday by the Atlanta Braves, a move that could signal the end of his major-league career. The Braves cleared roster space to activate left-hander Mike Hampton from the disabled list so he could start Tuesday night's game against the Washington Nationals. Atlanta has 10 days to trade Mondesi, put him on waivers or send him outright to the minors, if he consents. The team doesn't expect Mondesi to agree to that. (AP)

Angry Brown Denies Latest Rumor

ESPN.com reports that Pistons coach agreed to become Cavs' GM

NBA | Larry Brown was defensive, testy and defiant Tuesday in reacting to a report that he already had agreed to become president of the Cleveland Cavaliers, sticking with his story that he wants to keep coaching.

ESPN.com, quoting two anonymous league sources, said Brown decided to accept a front-office position with Cleveland. Brown maintains he wants to address a health issue after the Detroit Pistons' season ends before deciding what his next career move will be.

More people are talking about Brown's future than the Pistons-Heat series.

"Why should I worry about Plan B when I'm worried about being healthy?" Brown said.

Brown is known to have met with Cavaliers officials after the Pistons gave them permission to speak to him nearly a month ago.

Cleveland already has decided to hire Indiana assistant coach Mike Brown as its new head coach, and there have been several reports indicating Milt Newton of the Washington Wizards, who played for Brown at Kansas, is the front-runner for the Cavs' general manager position.

"We will know more this week," Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert said in an e-mail.

Brown said he had not spoken to his players about his future career plans.

"It is what it is, whatever it is," Detroit center Ben Wallace said. "Do I believe the rumors? It is what it is." CHRIS SHERIDAN (AP)

LAST CALL: The Green Bay Packers will retire Reggie White's number at halftime ceremonies of their home opener against the Cleveland

Browns on Sept. 18. White, who led the Packers to a Super Bowl title in 1996, suddenly died on Dec. 26, 2004 at the age of 43.

Bell Eyes 'Small Victories' as the Royals' Manager

BASEBALL | Buddy Bell, hired as manager of the Kansas City Royals on Tuesday, promised no quick turnaround for the team with the worst record in the majors.

"It's going to take some time to figure this out," Bell said in a news conference at Kauffman Stadium. "Right now we are looking for small victories."

Bell, a five-time All-Star third baseman, was bench coach with the Cleveland Indians. He takes over a struggling franchise and is on pace to have one of the worst seasons in modern baseball history. (AP)

No. 1 Davenport Out in Straight Sets

Pierce, Henin-Hardenne move to French semis

TENNIS | Mary Pierce took a moment to grasp what was happening on center court, because she knew that one day it would make a beautiful memory.

The crowd was chanting "Mary!" She was beating world No. 1 Lindsay Davenport in the French Open quarterfinals.

When she won 6-3, 6-2 — in a mere 1 hour, 21 minutes — she could hardly believe it.

"I'm really shocked," said a beaming Pierce, who is in her first Grand Slam semifinal since winning Roland Garros in 2000. "I beat the No. 1 in two sets."

Justine Henin-Hardenne thought much the same thing in her 6-4, 6-2 quarterfinal win over No. 2-seeded Maria Sharapova.

It was the 22nd consecutive win on clay for Henin-Hardenne, the 2003 champion and No. 10 seed.

"My game is probably better than it has ever been," said Henin-Hardenne, who returned in March from a seven-month layoff because of a blood virus and knee injury.

The absence has given her a new perspective on tennis. "I feel very lucky I can play, and each shot I hit, it's just such a great pleasure," Henin-Hardenne said.

She faces seventh-seeded Nadia Petrova of Russia in the semifinals Thursday. Petrova advanced by beating 17-year-old Serb Ana Ivanovic 6-2, 6-2. Pierce will play another Russian, Elena Likhovtseva, who beat 15-year-old Sesil Karatantcheva 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. JOCELYN GECKER (AP)

Mystics Seek Their First Home Win

Adubato faces his old team when the Liberty travel to MCI Center

MYSTICS | In last week's nine-point loss to the Los Angeles Sparks, the Mystics made 15 three-point field goals to set a new WNBA league record.

"Well, we said we were going to be exciting when we came in here," joked new Mystics coach Richie Adubato after his team's 84-75 loss to the Sparks. "We want to keep people in the building. We want them to enjoy the game."

So far, so good. Despite a 1-2 record, the Mystics have shown promise in their two home losses. The focus now shifts to the New York Liberty, who visit MCI Center tonight.

"We just lost two at home so it's a must [-win] game for us," said Adubato.

Perhaps no other opposing league coach can scout the Liberty better than Adubato, who spent five seasons as New York's head coach.

Coach Richie Adubato is trying to pack games with lots of three-pointers.

During his tenure in the Big Apple, Adubato led the Liberty to a 100-79 record and reached back-to-back Eastern Conference Finals.

Adubato said he's concerned about facing his former team that includes starters Vickie Johnson, Becky Hammon, Crystal Robinson, Elena Baranova and Ann Wauters. "They're all shooters," he said, "so that presents a problem."

When the Mystics and Liberty get together, Adubato will not be the only coach facing a former team. Marianne Stanley, the Mystics coach two years ago, is an assistant with New York. BRANDY L. SIMMS

The Gallaghers settle their demons and re-create their Oasis

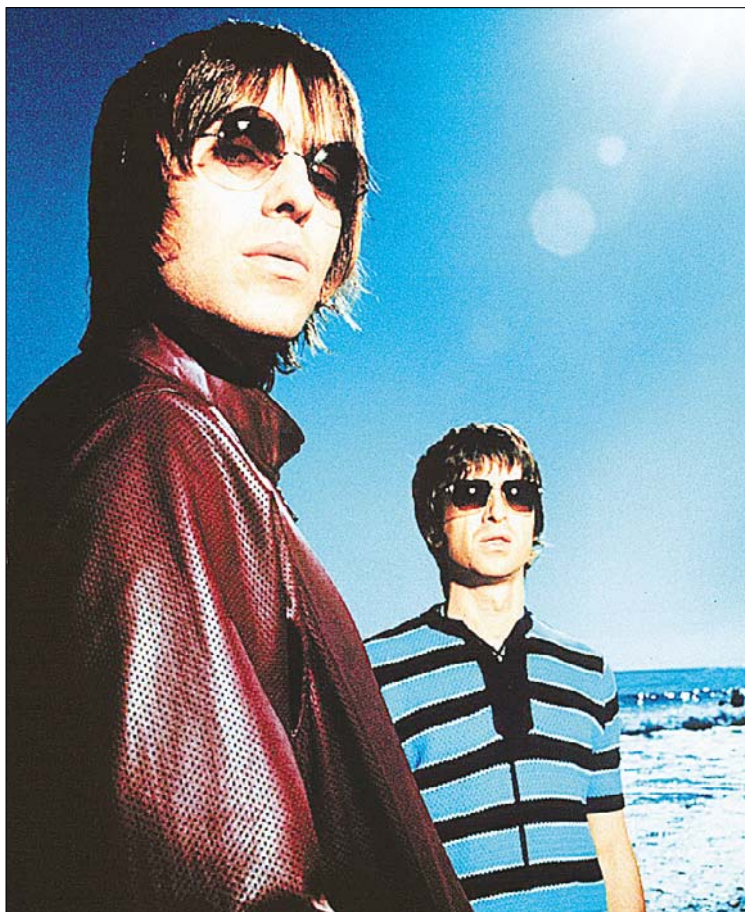

COMEBACKS | Few British bands ever lived up to the adage of "sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll" more fully than Oasis, led by feuding brothers Noel and Liam Gallagher.

This decade's Noel, however, says his 5-year-old daughter Anais is his greatest joy. There is much else to celebrate for a band that nose-dived so dramatically in the late '90s that many considered Oasis dead and buried.

The group's new album, "Don't Believe the Truth," has been receiving mostly glowing reviews in London. The influential Mojo magazine cover declares: "The Kings of British Rock Reborn!"

Even America, which was turned off in the '90s by the group's sometimes-boorish behavior, seems ready to give the band another chance.

Oasis made some of the most invigorating rock of the '90s. "Tonight I'm a rock 'n' roll star," Liam screamed in the opening tune on the group's 1994 debut album, "Definitely Maybe." The line (and album) captured the youthful bravado of the underdog who vows to overcome everyone and everything that made him feel inferior.

But U.S. fans eventually were put off by canceled tours and frequent bickering between the Gallaghers. A bigger problem was a severe drop-off in creativity.

Then came the pressures of being in a successful band — and the drugs. When Oasis recorded "Definitely Maybe," Noel said, the band couldn't afford drugs. By the time of "Be Here Now," things were getting out of control.

"I couldn't believe how popular we were," he recalled. "I remember coming home from a tour and there were like 600 fans standing in front of my house."

The appealing thing about the new album, which arrives in stores Tuesday, is that several songs, including "Turn Up the Sun" and "A Bell Will Ring," reflect the energy and optimism of those first two CDs.

Though one of his new songs, "Let There Be Love," has the old anthemish spirit, Noel Gallagher experiments with different textures and themes on the four others he wrote for the album. He's so excited about writing again that he's already working on tunes for the next Oasis album.

"I've never felt better," he said. "It has taken me until now to find in my private life all the joy I expressed in those early songs."

Gary Cooper's screen oeuvre plays like a compendium of cool

DVDS | Several films starring three legendary actors — Gary Cooper, Marlon Brando and James Dean — arrived Tuesday on DVD.

Universal's "The Gary Cooper Collection" features five entertaining films that the handsome, lanky superstar made for Paramount during the 1930s. In 1933's ribald comedy "Design for Living," directed by Ernst Lubitsch from the play by Noel Coward, Cooper shows his sophisticated side as a struggling painter living in Paris. In 1935's lush romantic fantasy "Peter Ibbetson," he plays an architect with love complications; 1936's thriller "The General Died at Dawn" finds Cooper as an American in China trying to smuggle funds to help downtrodden Chinese fight a ruthless warlord. Cooper, Robert Preston and Ray Milland are brothers serving in the French Foreign

The actor famous for being taciturn actually played a rich variety of roles.

Legion in William Wellman's stirring 1939 adventure, "Beau Geste"; and in 1935's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," he is nearly perfect as a British soldier in India.

"The Marlon Brando Collection," also from Universal, is a big disappointment. Three of the four films have previously been available on DVD: 1963's political thriller "The Ugly American" (the best of this lot); 1967's "A Countess From Hong Kong"; and the bizarre 1968 thriller "The Night of the Following Day." One new offering is the pedestrian 1966 western "The Appaloosa."

The Soft Rebellion

The Wallflowers remain offbeat despite strong hooks

MUSIC | The Wallflowers enter musical middle age gracefully with their fifth release, "Rebel, Sweetheart" (Interscope).

After nearly 15 years of music-making, the Jakob Dylan-led combo yet again delivers a nuanced, musically bright and lyrically dense effort.

With an ever-shifting cadre of band members, the latest incarnation of the Wallflowers continues to sound a bit like Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band.

But Jakob is still a Dylan, and he still likes leaving listeners a little perplexed. Take the album's title, for example. In promotional material, the young Dylan says that the "rebel" in the title is a verb, not a noun. Beyond that, he won't explain.

MARK J. TERRILL/AP

WHAT? Dylan's lyrics remain obscure, but the melodies are listener-friendly.

Listeners will find fertile lyrical ground here to hunt for clues. The 12 tracks on "Rebel, Sweetheart" crackle with both musical and lyrical intensity. Particularly noteworthy is the opening track, "Days of Wonder," which isn't quite as full of optimism as the title may suggest.

What the album doesn't appear to have are any breakout hits like those on 1996's "Bringing Down the Horse," which propelled the band to stardom with "One Headlight." Hits mean little to most Wallflowers fans, but without them, the band is not likely to attract many new listeners with this one.

Entertainment

WACKY ROCK FANS: Coldplay expected to rocket to No. 1 on the British singles charts with "Speed of Sound" this weekend. But an annoying novelty ring tone called "Crazy Frog Axel F" beat the gloomsters to the top of the mainstream music charts. Take that, Mr. Gwyneth!

Dancing to Her Beat

Ellen DeGeneres hosts the most musical hour in daytime TV

BOOKING | The many disciples of Ellen DeGeneres' know that the stand-up-comedian-turned-author-turned-talk-show-host loves music. Whether it's rapping along to a 50 Cent jam or dancing to one of Madonna's grooves, played by the show's DJ, Tony Okungbowa, DeGeneres appears genuinely interested in music and the artists who create it.

In May alone, musical guests have included Gwen Stefani, Neil Diamond, Mariah Carey, the Backstreet Boys and a number of "American Idol" castoffs. Oh, Jennifer Lopez and Britney Spears stopped by, too. Upcoming guests include Gretchen Wilson, Nelly, Lee Ann Womack and Il Divo.

"The Ellen DeGeneres Show" will go dark for the summer. But right now, the out, loud and proud DeGeneres is very much on.

Was it a conscious decision to incorporate music and artists?

I always wanted a DJ from the beginning. And I thought the more types of music we played, the more types of viewers we'd get.

You champion veterans and newcomers alike from Rob Thomas and Elton John to Ringside and Ciara. In booking is there an "Ellen philosophy"?

"If it sounds good in my car, it'll sound good on the show."

SINGING ALONG: Ellen Degeneres' show sounds hipper than any other talk show.

I've adopted the philosophy of Socrates: "If it sounds good in my car, it'll sound good on the show." I think he said that.

Are there any acts that you desperately want to have on?

U2 and Coldplay. It just hasn't happened yet. I sent them a candygram, so they should be on any-time now.

What is your fan mail saying about your musical guests?

They're saying, "Ellen, we love the music ... keep it up, and also can you get George Clooney to come on, even though he isn't a musician?"

What was the first record you purchased?

I've always loved music. My first album was David Bowie, "The Rise and Fall of Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders From Mars" [from 1972].

What is the one thing you would say to others who are just starting out in entertainment?

Follow the three P's: persistence, preparedness and prawns. [They] fill you up, but don't weigh you down. MICHAEL PAOLETTA (BILLBOARD)

'Geek': Revenge of the Nerds

On a sharp new show, girls and boys trade smarts and appeal

REALITY TV | News flash: The WB network may finally have a hit reality show on its hands. And it only took a Fox star with an MTV pedigree to make it happen.

Producer Ashton Kutcher brings his combination of impish charm and thinly veiled sadism to "Beauty and the Geek" (8 p.m., WB), a surprising social experiment disguised as a reality show that trades in obvious clichés and cruelty, but that is never afraid to show a little heart.

This anonymous unlikely pair is just half of a reason to watch "Beauty."

"Beauty" features seven socially maladjusted geniuses and seven shallow and badly educated sorority types. Paired off early in tonight's show, they are dependent on each other as they compete in alternating challenges that test mental ability and dating skills.

The last couple standing walks away with $250,000. And along the way, the dorky guys get to loosen up and the gals learn that looks aren't everything. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Designers are finding the fabric ideal for summer accessories

Canvas tote bags and skimmer shoes have long been warm-weather staples, though generally left to outdoor apparel makers. But now, trendier designers are embracing cotton canvas for fashion accessories.

Canvas is easy to manipulate, encouraging experimentation. Defined by its plain over-under weave with no directional lines, the fabric invokes a casual, laid-back feeling, says Reed Krakoff, president of Coach. He used canvas this season for handbags, shoes and hats.

It's a hearty fabric that holds treatments, decoration and color while keeping shape, he said. Coach also offers a "more refined, sexier," silk-blend canvas that's sleek and sporty, he said. "You can create a bag that's whimsical and playful," Krakoff said.

Ugg Australia Handbags designer Leslie Hsu said her canvas boogie and board tote "are great for the beach; they fit everything and have tons of pockets." But she also takes it further: to the workplace.

While her "surf" canvas bags go with shorts, bathing suits, sarongs and jeans, she said, her "sand" bags blend with a professional outfit, and can hold a laptop, folders, planners and electronics. "Canvas is like a blank. You can turn it into anything you want," Hsu said. "It won't look trendy or dated. Canvas is timeless."

Fashion's color revolution has spread to accessories, fueling canvas' re-emergence, said Keds president Shawn Neville. Color remains bright on canvas because of its tight weave. "Canvas absorbs well, and as ink dries, it actually becomes brighter," he explained. "It's also very pliable."

But Neville and other designers also said it is important to keep canvas simple. "It's a very clean look," said Buzz designer Jane Fox, while Glamour's Suze Yalof Schwartz sug-

All About My Ma

HOW DO I EXPLAIN TO MY MOM

that when we take family trips that aren't to visit her, it really has nothing to do with her? We live out West; she lives on the East Coast. She's retired and can travel anytime she wants. My wife and I both work full-time and we have two toddlers. We're taking a vacation soon, and when I told my mom about it, she just said, "You know this upsets me, don't you?" Then she said she'll talk to me sometime before her next visit and hung up on me. That was three weeks ago and I haven't heard from her since. She's always been like this. Even when I was in college she'd freak out if I even suggested I wasn't coming home on a break.

—MAMA WOES IN DENVER

I bet she does understand that these trips have nothing to do with her, and that's exactly what's been burning her bacon.

It seems that when you got married and had children, your mom didn't quite realize that your priorities (naturally) shifted a bit. This could have something to do with her circumstances — does she live alone? What other family do you have? Does she have interests or a social life outside of you? Even a canasta group is something.

It's time to be honest and tell her that you are not just a son, but also a father and husband who is building new memories with his family. And that building these memories will involve all sorts of trips and activities, which simply won't always involve visiting her, though her visits to you are always welcome.

Your mom may be acting out of loneliness or fear that you'll drift apart. Try your best to show that she'll always be a priority in your family's life, whether you're thousands of miles away or bickering in the same kitchen. In the end, though, if her grumbling doesn't change, you'll unfortunately need to get used to it. Hey, it's what most sitcoms are made of.

I've made the move to start counseling for some family issues. Who in my life should I tell — new boyfriend, siblings, friends?

—JUST WONDERING, WASHINGTON

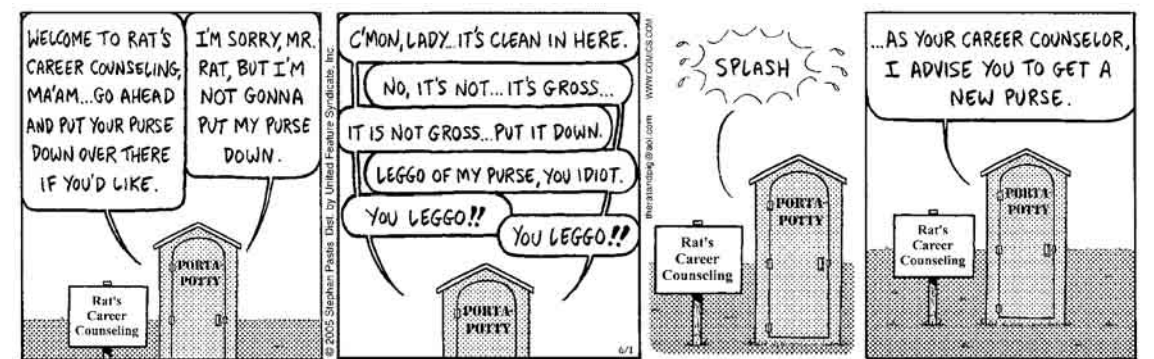

You should tell whomever you want to tell, whenever you're ready to tell them. And your only concern should be whether "whomever" is actually a word.

The Trouble With 'Cool'

SOCIAL SCIENTISTS should sometimes expect ridicule for empirical studies showing what everybody knows, which is why I am so surprised that the "Study: 'Cool Kids' Get in More Trouble" (from Tuesday's Express) left researchers so surprised by their findings. One need but look at what passes for cool nowadays, such as almost thuggish popular music lyrics and skin-tight girls' jeans and tube-top clothing styles and droopy drawers, which challenge authority. Isn't it harder to imagine nerdy, uncool math and computer geeks whose forte is intellectualism imbibing in mind-impairing drugs and alcohol than the popular "in" crowd?

MUSIC

Satan Conquers Athens

Metal band SLIPKNOT played in Athens on Monday despite a request by the Greek Orthodox Church for organizers to cancel the show because of the group's violent lyrics and references to Satan. Slipknot's song "I Am Hated" includes the lyrics: "The whole world is my enemy — and I'm a walking target/ Two times the devil with all the significance/ Dragged and raped for the love of a mob / I can't stay — because I can't be stopped." (AP)

When Slipknot plays, it leaves a striking and Satanic fuschia haze in the air.

PSYCHOLOGY

Two Great Actors, Two Different Rationalizations

Freeman chose

Batman because the superhero is human, he rationalized to reporters. Batman because he's human, not super-human: "Batman was my favorite superhero as a kid, because he didn't have super-strength. He was just a guy who trained all the time," he said. Neeson, however, didn't like Batman as a child. "As a boy Batman was always a bit scary. I couldn't say why. He wasn't my favorite superhero. Superman was," he said. (EXPRESS)

GROPING

A Career Shrivels

CHRISTIAN SLATER has been arrested on a charge that he groped a woman. Slater and his girlfriend were arguing at a grocery store in Manhattan on Tuesday. The actor then allegedly walked up behind a woman in the store and grabbed her buttocks. Slater was charged with third-degree sexual abuse. (AP) told reporters at the world premiere of "Batman Begins" in Tokyo Tuesday, Reuters reported. "He's the most amazing man in the whole world." Nearly two-thirds of those polled in a People survey said they thought their liaison was a stunt. (AP)

TESTIMONY

Kenny G Seal of Approval

An "Extreme Makeover" doctor is retaliating against KATHY GRIFFIN, who said she's losing sight in her right eye because he erred during her Lasik surgery, the New York Post reported. Dr. Robert Maloney's publicist released statements from clients like Kenny G., whose testimony could move one to tears: "Every time I open my eyes in the morning I think of Robert Maloney. It took about 20 seconds and my whole life changed." (EXPRESS)

CANADA

She's Practically Miss America, Really

Miss Canada, NATALIE GLEBOVA, was crowned Miss Universe in the Thai capital of Bangkok. The brunette from Toronto was chosen over Miss Puerto Rico Cynthia Olavarria. Glebova, 23, was asked what she considered the biggest challenge of her life. She said it was remaining optimistic. "I always try to maintain a positive outlook on life," she said. Contestants have also driven the country's famous three-wheeled motorcycle taxis, called tuk-tuks, and ridden atop elephants — Thailand's national symbol. (AP)

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be trusted with an important secret; it will be up to you to boost another's confidence and willingness to put it all on the line.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may find yourself engaged in a battle of wills—but you are better equipped to prevail. You know what you want—and how to get it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is a good day to focus on long-term intentions—yours and of people around you. Greater understanding is a result of communication.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be sure that your observations and criticisms of those working or playing under your command are direct, clear and always specific.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can't afford to turn your back on those who come to you for assistance, as you may well need assistance yourself before you know it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You are likely to be more responsive to subtle, unspoken messages than you've been in the recent past. Pay attention to internal, external rhythms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You are best to respond to disappointment with attempts to understand rather than with outbursts. Keep those emotions in check.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be more choosy and selective throughout the day, especially when you are bombarded with choices that only seem trivial.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll learn the meaning of truth in advertising. Be sure you know what you want, or someone will be able to take advantage of you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll be exposed to a number of contrasting influences. Keep your head and don't be tempted to fly off the handle—even on purpose.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your continued efforts to heal a family rift will be more appreciated and more successful than they have been in the past. Keep it up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not one to add to the rumor mill. Leave gossip to gossips and do what you can to promote the truth and nothing but the truth.
